

Fair Trade Chocolate @ GJC

Bars are Kosher Pareve Certified in Switzerland by Rabbi Abraham Hochwald, Chief Rabbi of the Northern Rhine-Germany and have not kitniyot in them. The CJLS has determined that such items may be used on Passover if purchased before bedikat hametz.

HELP SUPPORT THE GJC RELIGIOUS SCHOOL, SATISFY YOUR SWEET TOOTH, AND GET READY FOR PESACH...
ALL AT THE SAME TIME!

These organic chocolate bars are crafted using only the purest ingredients, grown with care by small farmer co-ops. The products offered through this fundraiser (on this website) are soy lecithin-free, meaning that they do not contain any soy products (kitniyot), which are prohibited on Passover for Ashkenazi Jews. Rabbi Aaron Alexander has approved them as Kosher for Passover if acquired before bedikat chametz (the night before first seder).

The chocolate is listed in the Conservative movement's Passover guide.

A Kavannah (Intention) for Eating Fair Trade Chocolate

Every generation learns that things are more than they seem. This chocolate I hold is more than just chocolate. This is a symbol of potential freedom, a realization that foods that give me delight can be made without child labor. Joy need not be accompanied by pain or oppression. May I experience the sweet flavor of this gift as a hint of the freedom that birthed it. May the world know liberation, one person at a time, mindful act by mindful act, until all people are free.

- Rabbi Menachem Creditor
