

A Little Bit About the Rainbow

with Dasi and Toby

Dasi: My name is Dasi, and to me pride is lifting everyone up, acceptance, and coming together to celebrate who we are and who we love. It's great to be here to do that.

Toby: Yo Dasi!

Dasi: Hey Toby what's up?

Toby: You know what's crazy?

Dasi: What!?

Toby: ITS PRIDE MONTH!

Dasi: Wow June already?! EPIC!!

Toby: I know right! What's your favorite part of pride?

Dasi: I just love that it's a chance for everyone to celebrate who they are and who they love! But really, the symbolic rainbow is one of my favorite parts.

Toby: Wow, same, it's a great reminder of the beautiful LGBTQIA+ community! Did you know that in Greek mythology a rainbow is a bridge between heaven and earth!

Dasi: And in our very own tradition, the rainbow serves as the covenant or promise between G-d and our people!

Toby: Did you know the world's longest-lasting rainbow was seen over Sheffield, England on March 14, 1994 – it lasted from 9am to 3pm.

Dasi: Wow! And no two people see the same rainbow, even our individual eyes see slightly different rainbows. If you see someone standing under a rainbow they see a different rainbow at the same angle but further away.

Toby: The state of Hawaii is home to the most Rainbows than any other area on Earth.

Dasi: I know where I'm vacationing next year.

Toby: Do you really think that I could find gold at the end of the rainbow?

Dasi: Sadly, that's scientifically impossible, but I do know that up next we have the amazing Serena to lead us in a fantastic rainbow scavenger hunt where we can find all sorts of cool things!

Toby: Awesome! Take it away Serena.
